

The person on the staff of an ice cream store who is responsible for the removal of frost, snow, and ice from the walk-in freezer, as well as cleaning the floor and shelves therein and similar frigid tasks. The Polar Bear wears a coat, warm socks, a hat and gloves even in July to execute their chilly responsibilities. The freezer maintains an ambient temperature of approximately 7 degrees F. above zero and a high wind circulation for even interior temperatures. Even in August, the Polar Bear takes frequent breaks to warm up and enjoy some hot chocolate.